width=\"500\" height=\"328\" />\u0093What\u0092s the best exercise for losing weight?\u0094 is a common question says Dr. Roman Ledger of East Bridge Hospital in San Diego, and his answer is \u0093whatever exercise you\u0092ll do consistently.\u0094 Running may burn more calories per minute than walking, but if you\u0092re more likely to stay the course on a walking program, then you\u0092ll burn more calories overall in the long run. When venturing into a new exercise program, Dr. Roman says \u0093it\u0092s more important to consider your own personal preferences, not the calorie listings in a diet book.\u0094 For example, if you prefer being in the great outdoors to exercising indoors, you may find that hiking becomes a constant in your life, whereas the treadmill might be tossed aside after a brief interlude. Start with your likes and dislikes, and find ways to make exercise a part of your daily life, such as walking the dog.
With this approach, you\u0092re likely to make a long commitment to prioritize your health amongst the many competing demands of a busy lifestyle. That\u0092s why it\u0092s up to you to make the conscious choice to slow down, take inventory on your health, and find ways to make improvements. The first place to start is with your annual physical. One simple visit to your doctor each year can be the most important thing you do for your health, and in most cases, it\u0092s completely covered by insurance. The annual exam can catch health issues, such as diabetes and cancer, in the early stages, giving you a much better chance at beating them down. Make a point of calling your doctor today and putting a wellness visit on your calendar. It\u0092s a great first step to prioritizing your health.",
